

WILL MAKE WORDS GOOD, SAYS COLONEL

Roosevelt, Served in $50,000 Suit, Accepts Gauntlet Thrown Down by Barnes.

WESTER BAY, July 24.—On his return to Sagamore Hill last night Colonel Roosevelt accepted service of a writ from James S. Ivins, of the New York law firm in New York in the $50,000 libel suit brought by William Barnes, Jr.

When he came to Oyster Bay in a motor car, after a conference, which ended at 6 o'clock, with Barnes, at the Republican Club in New York. It was 8 o'clock when Ivins rang the bell at the Roosevelt home. Roosevelt was expecting him for he had heard in the afternoon that Ivins would likely make the trip. Archie Roosevelt went to the door and when Ivins introduced himself, explained the Colonel was at dinner and that he would call him later.

"All Right," Says Roosevelt. Roosevelt started for the door as Ivins was about to step in. He greeted Ivins effusively. Ivins shook hands with the Bull Moose chief and, fishing out the complaint in the libel action, gave it to the Colonel.

"I'm very sorry, Colonel, to disturb you in a matter of this kind," remarked the lawyer, as Roosevelt took the paper from him.

"That's all right, that's all right," responded the ex-President amiably. Not one word had been spoken as to the nature of the paper, the Colonel accepted. Roosevelt invited Ivins to step into his library, and Ivins followed him. The Bull Moose leader grabbed a box of cigars and asked Ivins to help himself. Ivins declined. The Colonel held the libel papers in his hand. He asked no questions about them. Barnes' name was not mentioned. Ivins sat in the library for a moment, got up, said "good-night" and left.

On his way back to New York, Ivins stopped at a village inn for dinner, where he told of his conference at the Republican Club with Barnes. He said: In talking of bringing the libel action against Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Barnes said to me: "Mr. Roosevelt last year did the unusual thing of suing for libel a Michigan editor who called him a drunkard. I'm simply following the precedent he set."

Colonel Eager for Trial. The papers served on Colonel Roosevelt include in full the statement issued by Roosevelt, in which he came out for Mr. Hinman and attacked Mr. Barnes. In referring to the statement, Mr. Roosevelt said: "Mr. Barnes not only had no right to say that I was a drunkard, but he had no right to say that I was a drunkard."

"Let Mr. Barnes go ahead," was his only comment. "I have never said anything yet that I could not make good."

THE FISHERMAN'S GUIDE

Weather forecast—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature. Condition of Potomac—Clouded, but clearing. Wind—Light, variable. High tide—8:52 a. m. and 9:25 p. m. Low tide—2:55 a. m. and 3:34 p. m.

You cannot keep a good man down. His copies in large measure to fishermen, for they are mostly good men. He is instant the Potomac began clearing up, the fishermen turned out. Yesterday, although the water was considered cloudy, the water was a number of "good men" out in their boats, fishing their favorite drops and catching some fair fish.

There are yellow perch in the river now. The white perch has apparently changed its mind and is now coming out for parts unknown, but his brother of the yellow and black stripes is substituting for him. This yellow perch, by no means to be scorned, for a good size member of this species will take the bait like a bull pup after a bone, and in his first rush will furnish a quiet little thrill.

Bass are being taken now, also. Large catches have not been registered, but with proper bait and judicious choice of place, the angler who knows his game may be assured of a good catch. Little over opposite Georgetown, will soon be a good ground of the bass, and it is because the angler to whom this has been a favorite place to visit it once more before the end, for auld lang syne.

There is a better chance for the bass angler if he will go up above Great Falls. There he will find the quiet places, above the falls, where a bass may lie and dream and wait the passing minnow under a submerged log, or he may make his way to the swift water below and in the curl of the eddies, below the rocks, catch a lightning leap from the stream. White water gives fine sport.

The following places bear the reputation of being good fishing grounds: (1) The "Falls," a pool above Boiling Rock, straight out from Fletcher's. The water is deep and swift, and the pool bears its name because the fish are known to congregate there. (2) Middle Rock, above the Chain Bridge. It is well to arrange to have a boat taken up on the flood tide, as it is impossible to make headway against an ebb tide. (3) The "Hens and Chickens," off the point of the powerhouse near Fletcher's water 40 to 50 feet deep and very swift. Care must be exercised. (4) Near the "Ladder," at the Chain Bridge, opposite the branch on the Virginia side. (5) Opposite the point of Anacostia Island, along the bend of the river. Water about thirty feet deep. (6) Near the Thurston steel plant, at junction of Potomac and Eastern Branch. (7) The Tidal Basin. Boats and bait may be obtained at the Speedway boat house, at the western end of the basin. (8) The Dyke between Alexandria and Arlington. Boats may be obtained near car station. (9) Occoquan, above the bridge.

NEW HAVEN MASSES PUPILS TO PRESENT ARMY OF LAWYERS OPERETTA TONIGHT

Storey, Ledyard, Lindabury, Spooner, and Bailey to Fight Dissolution.

Simultaneous proceedings in the Government's anti-trust dissolution suit against the New Haven system and grand jury complaints alleging criminal conspiracy against its directors are in prospect today.

The New Haven must file its answer to the Government's equity suit, filed yesterday in New York, by August 15. By that time, it was stated at the Department of Justice today, the regular August Federal grand jury will be called there to take up prosecution of the directors and officers.

Attorney General McReynolds expects to be in New York tomorrow for a conference with District Attorney H. Snowden Marshall, of New York, and Special Assistant T. W. Gregory. They will discuss preliminaries of the grand jury's criminal proceedings.

A special grand jury is not believed necessary by the Department of Justice.

Army of Lawyers Gathered. Formal and categorical denial of all the Government's allegations in the equity dissolution suit is expected in the New Haven's answer. Officials here were advised today that the New Haven's defense will be in charge of Counsel Moorfield Storey, assisted probably by Lewis Cass Ledyard. There was also talk that Attorney R. V. Lindabury, often chief counsel for the Steel trust in the Government's anti-trust suit, might be called in to assist the New Haven's defense. Former Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, may represent George F. Baker, former Senator Joseph Bailey, of Texas, is also said to represent interests among the defendants. Personal counsel of William Rockefeller, former President Mellon, F. Plant, and others promises to swell the array of defense talent to considerable proportions.

Denny Will Probated. Justice Wright has signed an order admitting to probate the will of the late Col. Frank L. Denny of the United States Marine Corps, and granting letters testamentary to Julia T. Denny. The bond was placed at $100.

DANDRUFF—AN ENEMY TO BEAUTY

—Pretty hair, more than perfect features, makes a woman attractive, but no one can have beautiful hair if the dandruff is not kept out. Dandruff is your hair's worst enemy; and the dust and dirt of the street help to clog the pores of your scalp and stunt the growth of your hair.

To prevent this condition wash your hair thoroughly with Cobb's Shampoo. A little of the powder dissolved in water makes a rich, creamy lather that takes away every bit of the dirt, dandruff and excess oil. It contains no free alkali, and rinses out easily, leaving your hair soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. After the shampoo, apply Parian Sage—a perfect tonic—and rub it into the scalp.

Cobb's Shampoo (used frequently), and Parian Sage, are all that you need to keep your hair soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. They are entirely free from the sticky, stringy appearance of O'Donnell's Drug Store, or any drug or toilet counter will supply you with these absolute toilet necessities at a small cost.—Adv.

"NEWSIE" IS LATEST RECRUIT OF "SUFFS"

Israel April, II, Pays Initiation in Papers, and Expects to Sell More.

The Congressional Union for Women's Suffrage campaign has led to the enlistment in the ranks of one Israel April, eleven, a newsboy by occupation.

Israel, a red-headed, freckle-faced youth, with the wide spreading grin which attracts friends, entered the headquarters of the union yesterday and fell into converse with some of the ladies on duty there. In the course of the conversation, he was asked why he did not join the men's branch of the movement.

"Ain't got no money," replied Israel, "but if you will let me leave The Times to pay me dues, I'll join."

The matter was arranged on the spot, and Israel affixed his signature to a contract, whereby he is bound to leave the paper for twenty-five days, and in return, become a full-fledged member of the affiliated branch.

Israel was asked why he wished to become a suffragist. "So's they kin git their rights," he replied. Then he added as an after thought, "I kin sell dem papers, too." The young man seems to have a keen eye for politics and business combined. A bystander suggested, upon hearing his answer, that in the course of time he would probably become Secretary of State.

A successful The Times' resident at the residence of Mrs. Arvilla McDonough, 104 Vermont avenue northwest, last night. Several addresses were made during intermissions, when the dancing was discontinued. Miss Izetta Jewell, leading woman at Poll's, who joined the union, the Congressional Union, visited the dance after the performance last night and was congratulated upon her entrance to the ranks of the woman's cause.

New U. S. Chart Teaches How to Candle Eggs

To enable farmers and housewives to test eggs before a candle and tell accurately their condition before they are opened, the Department of Agriculture has just published a colored egg-candling chart. To give a true picture of the eggs, twelve impressions were necessary to produce this lithographed chart.

This chart shows the eggs in their natural size as they appear before a candle, and also as they look when open in a glass saucer. The pictures include an absolutely fresh egg, slightly stale eggs, decidedly stale eggs, eggs with yolks sticking to the shell, eggs where the chicken has developed so far that blood has been formed, moldy eggs, addled eggs, and eggs with a green white.

Comparatively few housewives are aware that a green color in the white of eggs is due to the presence of bacteria of a certain species of bacteria that make a green coloring matter. Eggs with this greenish tint, even though the yolks seem to be perfect are not fit for food.

As long as the department's supply lists are available to the average farmer, this bulletin includes the colored illustrations. This chart alone will be found to be not more, but of great service to the housewife.

wishing to test the eggs she is to serve to her own family, but also of commercial value to farmers, country merchants, or egg shippers who wish to buy and handle eggs on an accurate quality basis.

The great spoilage of eggs in this country is due to bad handling, and is quite unnecessary. Part of the remedy is to teach everybody, from the farmer to consumer, how to tell the quality of an egg without breaking the shell. The country buyers, the middlemen and the housewife judge of the quality of the inside of a cucumber or an eggplant, or any other vegetable, by the appearance of the outside and the firmness of its texture. It is not possible to tell the quality of an egg by looking at the shell, though it is safe to say that the eggs with shiny shells are apt to be aged.

A fresh egg looks as though it had been dusted with a very fine powder, the "bloom" as the egg men say. But in order to know what is inside the shell the egg must be held in front of a strong light—such as an electric bulb—furnishes—which comes through a hole about one and one-fourth inches in diameter. The room must be dark. When the egg is held close against the hole the bright light renders its contents visible, and the quality is indicated by the appearance of the yolk, the white and the air space at the blunt end.

There are many egg "candlers" on the market, but the housewife can easily make one for herself by cutting a hole in a small pasteboard box, which is slipped over an electric light bulb. If gas or an oil lamp is the source of light, a tin box or can should be used.

MERCURY TO DROP, FORECASTER SAYS

Thundershower Predicted by Weather Bureau for Afternoon or Evening.

The temperature will hover around the low nineties today.

A thunder shower is predicted for this afternoon. The forecast for tonight and tomorrow is partly cloudy, with not much change in temperature.

The heights to which the heat went in Washington yesterday will positively not be repeated today, according to the Weather Bureau, whose cheering message this morning was that the District of Columbia is to be the favored spot today and tomorrow.

While the Ohio and Mississippi valley regions and all the South are sweltering today, Washington has nearly ten degrees less of heat than was apparent yesterday, when the mercury at the Weather Bureau soared as high as 88 degrees.

The extreme South started today with midday temperatures, Key West and Miami, Fla., temperatures mounting to 84 at 7 a. m. St. Louis, Cincinnati and Ft. Wayne started the day with temperatures of 80 degrees, one point less than Washington at 7 o'clock, but the 100 mark was expected to be reached before 2 o'clock. Chicago is blessed with a breeze from Lake Michigan and its temperature of 88 degrees at 7 a. m. is not expected to go higher than 90 degrees during the day.

Temperatures in New York and Boston were low this morning, compared with other cities in the East, but later in the day increased heat was forecast for all.

Had 15 Drinks in 20 Minutes

NEW YORK, July 24.—Can a man go to a saloon fifteen times in twenty minutes, each time taking a drink of whisky? At least, a witness testified that Franklin D. Witterau had done it, in Witterau's suit to be allowed to manage his own affairs.

Questioned closely by lawyers, the witness said that Witterau's time for the trips to the saloon were slower on the last three or four than on the first ten and eleven. He explained this by saying that whisky in bulk doesn't travel in a straight line.

Despite the whisky witness, Witterau, who is wealthy, convinced a jury that he is capable of managing his own affairs.
